

REACH AGREEMENT ON ALL BIG QUESTIONS

CRIMINAL SIDE OF DOCKET WILL BE OF INTEREST

Murder, Manslaughter, Rape and Larceny Cases Are Listed For Trials

FORTY-TWO NEW CASES

New Cases Entered On the Docket Include Nine Divorce Suits

A total of forty-two new cases were filed for entrance on the docket for the January term of the circuit court, the time for service in which expired at midnight; twenty-five of the number being chancery cases and seventeen in common law. The number of new cases is not as large as officials had expected it would be, and the term gives no promise of being very busy, with the exception of the criminal docket.

Eight matters have been referred to the January grand jury, which will meet on the first day of the term, Monday, Jan. 6, and indictments are expected in all, indicating that the state's attorney will be kept busy.

Two Murder Charges.
Among the cases in which the grand jury will undoubtedly return true bills are the murder charges against Raymond Johnson and Al Lucas, negroes, charged with the murder of George Bush at Nelson on Dec. 6; one charge of rape and several alleged larcenies. One criminal case, the charge of manslaughter against Edward Garland of Harmon, who is alleged to have caused the death of Eric Brolin in a street fight at Harmon on Saturday night, Aug. 10, is the only criminal case remaining untried on the docket.

Few Divorces.
Nine divorce cases have been filed, and the docket also shows one suit for separate maintenance and one for annulment of marriage. The divorce cases are:

John W. vs. Mary Lightner.
Lena vs. Morris Smith.
Emma vs. John P. Kelly.
Olive L. vs. Daniel D. Hausen.
Nathan vs. Mildred Sanders.
Etta P. vs. Wilbur Spielman.
Mabel T. vs. Carey Fisher.
Maurice vs. Carrie E. Laursen.
Mary vs. Edward O'Connell.
The suit for separate maintenance has been brought by Mamie Herbst against her husband, Joseph Herbst.

Annulment of Marriage.
The suit for annulment of marriage brought by Mrs. Mattie Roop of Franklin Grove, formerly Mrs. Mattie Gorton, against Walter C. Roop, formerly of the same place, presents an unusual procedure in the Lee county circuit court. In her declaration, filed by her attorney, John E. Erwin, the plaintiff alleges that the defendant married her at Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 12, 1918, about two months after he had secured a decree of divorce in the Lee county circuit court; and she asks annulment on the grounds that the marriage is illegal under the laws of the state of Illinois, which prohibit the marriage of a divorced person within one year after such divorce.

THIRTY-SECOND GOLD STAR ON COUNTY FLAG

PVT. PAUL WATTS OF BROOKLYN TOWNSHIP WAS KILLED IN RECENT ACTION

The thirty-second gold star will be added to the Lee county service banner in commemoration of Private Paul Watts of Brooklyn township, who was killed in action late in October. Word of the young soldier's death was received by friends in that vicinity last week. He was inducted into service early last spring from a Brooklyn township contingent, being employed on the Adolph Chaon farm at the time he was called, and he was a well-liked young man in that community. His home was originally at Cowden, Ill.

Premier Re-elected By Big Majority—Asquith Was Decisively Beaten

LABORITES SECOND

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Dec. 28.—David Lloyd George, premier and leader of the coalition government has been re-elected to parliament from Carnarvon, Wales. The premier, who stood as a coalition Liberal, received 13,993 votes to 1,095 for Arthur Harrison, son of Frederick Harrison, the writer. Mr. Harrison ran as an independent candidate.

All indications at 3 o'clock this afternoon were that the premier and his government would have a big majority in the new house of commons. Herbert Asquith, former premier and leader of the Liberals, was defeated for his seat in the commons from the east province of Fife, Scotland.

Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor party, and a former member of the war cabinet, was defeated in the south district of Eastham.

"GO TO HELL," SAID HOOVER TO GERMANS

American Food Administrator Talked Straight from Shoulder To Officers

DENIES THEM MEETING

Washington, Dec. 27.—Food Administrator Hoover, in Europe arranging relief for the peoples of the war devastated territories, has refused in emphatic terms to discuss German food conditions with Baron von der Lancken and Dr. Rieth, who sought a meeting with the food administrator.

A message from Paris today said these two German officials, who were prominent in the German administration of Belgium, wired from Berlin to Walter Lynan Brown, director of the commission for relief in Belgium at Rotterdam, that they had been appointed by the German government to negotiate with Mr. Hoover for food supplies and that they desired Mr. Hoover to advise them when and where he would meet them.

In answer to the request for a conference Mr. Hoover sent this message:

"You can describe two and a half years of arrogance toward ourselves and cruelty to the Belgians in any language you may select, and tell the pair personally to go to hell, with my compliments. If I do have to deal with Germans it will not be with that pair."

SINN FEINERS SWEEP COUNTIES IN ELECTION

Elected Seventy Members To Parliament But They Will Not Attend

IRISH PARLIAMENT

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Dec. 28.—Posters appeared in every parish in Ireland today announcing that the Irish Republic had come into being, says the Daily Express. It adds that the Sinn Feiners, in the recent election, overwhelmingly swept Leinster, Munster and Connaught.

Seventy members of Parliament were elected by the party, but they will not take their seats, and it is stated by the Express that they will establish the Central Sinn Feiner Council at Dublin almost immediately, to be known as the Irish Parliament.

If the government orders its disbandment it is stated it will be established elsewhere, and if necessary will move from place to place.

President Tells Audience At Guild Hall Balance Of Power Is Dead

OUTLOOK IS OPTIMISTIC

Guarantee, Not Items of Peace, of Most Concern To All the World

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Paris, Dec. 28.—One of the most prominent of the delegates to the peace conference now in Paris stated today that in the exchanges of conference during the past few days agreements had been reached on all principal questions of peace, and there had been a reconciling of different viewpoints on the question of freedom of the seas.

Premier Clemenceau, it is reported, has informed his friends that his three conferences with President Wilson and Col. E. M. House, had resulted in a complete understanding on all questions which will come before the congress.

As a result delegates to the peace conference have a more optimistic view of the outlook for the congress than they had a week ago.

Members of the American delegation attach especial significance to the president's conference with Premier Lloyd-George and Secretary Balfour and his speech at Buckingham Palace last night.

I. N. U. HAS BAD FIRE AT FREEPORT FRIDAY

$2,500 Loss In Blaze at Storage House Early Yesterday Morning

STARTS FROM ASHES

Freeport, Dec. 27.—Flames at the power house of the Illinois Northern Utilities company stubbornly resisted the fight of the firemen this morning. For three hours the blaze engaged the fire fighters and the loss will total approximately $2,500 on building and contents. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

The fire took place in a building which was formerly occupied by the J. W. Miller Incubator Works. It was a frame structure used by the electric company for the storage of repairs and stock. Ashes from the furnaces of the company were thrown close to the building. They were allowed to smoulder without any attention being paid to them, and early this morning flames broke forth from the pile of ashes and before they were discovered had set fire to the building. Workmen discovered the flames and sent in the alarm. The fire crept along the rafters and flooring of the building and had a good start before being discovered. Six streams of water were played on the fire. The firemen also paid close attention to the adjoining buildings, thus preventing a conflagration in that locality, as buildings are very close together and had the flames extended beyond the burning building no doubt a great loss would have followed as the large branch of the Moline Plow Works is close at hand. The electric company will in no wise be discommodated by the fire.

The morning section of the report was: Killed in action, 57; died of wounds, 33; died of accident and other causes, 17; died of airplane accident, 2; died of disease, 72; wounded severely, 229; wounded (degree undetermined), 17; wounded slightly, 10; missing in action, 59. SLACKERS WILL GET PUNISHMENT EVEN IF IT TAKES A CENTURY

Representatives of Local Boards Told Uncle Sam Means Business

SHELLER AT MEETING

Private From Local Board Attended Gathering In Chicago Yesterday

Private Harold Sheller, representing the Lee County Exemption Board, attended a meeting of members of the Chicago and northern Illinois draft boards at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, yesterday, at which time those present were told by V. J. O'Killiber, national draft inspector, that Uncle Sam is ready now to visit the judgment of "Valhalla," the heaven of fighting men, upon every slacker at large from the national army. No reference will be too distant to save the draft act delinquent and army deserter from certain punishment.

"Washington is ready to trace every slacker in the country to the ground if it takes 100 years," he declared.

"Deserters and delinquents shall be prosecuted, the first by courts martial, and the second by civil courts and shall be made to pay the penalty for their failure to respond to their country's call."

Belief in Immunity False.
"Scores of such men are living in the belief that they are immune to punishment now that the war is over, but in simple justice to the American soldiers who sacrificed everything for liberty and justice, not a single slacker case will be overlooked."

Simplicity will, mark the anti-slacker campaign, as explained by the inspector. At each state selective service headquarters lists of all deserters and delinquents will be made up at once and sent to local draft boards. The boards in turn will add

CONCERT OF BIG NATIONS WILL INSURE PEACE

One of Most Prominent Negotiates To Conference In Statement

BRITISH MINDS AGREE

Questions Arising Out of "Freedom of Seas" Have Been Settled

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Dec. 28.—King George called on President Wilson at his suite in Buckingham palace at 10 o'clock this morning to wish him many happy returns of the day. Today was the president's birthday—his sixty-second.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Dec. 28.—Speaking at Guild Hall today in the great ceremonial during which he met Great Britain's most distinguished statesmen, President Wilson reaffirmed that no longer would a "gallop of power" be able to upset the peace of the world, but a future concert of power will preserve it.

The reception which was given the president at Guild Hall was so spontaneous that it carried with it unmistakable friendship and admiration. When he arose to speak there was a mighty outburst of hand-clapping and cheering, and all through his talk he was interrupted with applause. At the conclusion of his address the audience of one accord arose and cheered, keeping up the applause and cheering as he left the hall.

Agreement of Mind

Mr. Wilson was given a notable ovation as he arose to begin his speech. He reviewed the mighty deeds of the armies of the associated governments and declared they wanted peace and wanted it immediately, "not, however, by conquest, but by agreement of mind."

When the president arrived the Royal Artillery band played American airs, and as he took his place on the platform it burst into "The Star Spangled Banner," during which the entire audience remained standing.

New Order of Things

In the course of his address he declared that the soldiers of the associated governments have done away with the old order of things and have established the new. The old order, he said, had for its center that "unstable thing called the balance of power" determined by competitive nations. It was "jealous and watchful" and the men who have fought this war from the free nations of the world should now end it forever.

The demand for a concert of power, he remarked, is coming from every quarter and every individual. The concert must not be a balance of power or one powerful group of nations set off against another, but it must be a single, overwhelming, powerful group, the trustees of the peace of the world.

British Mind With Him

The minds of the leaders of the British government, he said, are moving along the same line as his, in their belief that the key to peace was the guarantee of it, and not the items of it.

The items of it, Mr. Wilson affirmed, are worthless unless the concert stands behind it. He said no such potent union of purposes had ever been seen in the world before as that which now demands such a concert.

The president expressed his happiness that the ground had been cleared and the foundation had been laid because all nations had already agreed to the same body principles of the peace. These, he said, are clearly and definitely stated, and their application will be a matter of no fundamental difficulty.

"TWO FROM THE NEST, SUNNY SIDE UP"

That Describes the Great American Dish According to the Standards Set by the Yankee Doughboys in France—Mrs. Vincent Astor Tells of Great Part American Women Played in Maintaining Morale Of Uncle Sam's Fighters Overseas

New York, Dec. 28 (Special).—The part that women played in the war has been an indispensable factor toward victory, and never until historians have written the last chapter of the great war story will all that women have done be fully known and appreciated.

This is the opinion of Mrs. Vincent Astor, who after a year and a half of active service with the Y. M. C. A. has just returned to this country. And she proves her point by telling, although unwillingly, of her own contribution, a story that in spite of her modest narration, is one of devotion and unflagging faithfulness to the enlisted men, a story of manual labor, of long hours, of drudgery, of organizing, planning, of careful executive work. It is an honorable record, a record to be proud of, and yet Mrs. Astor calls herself a slacker for coming back so soon, and insists she didn't do any more than many other women in France.

Fed Many Daily

Although she was unwilling to talk about herself personally, for the sake of the Y. M. C. A. she received reporters at her New York home when she came back and told the story of her work in France, from the beginning when, in July, 1917, she and Mrs. Henry Russell (Ethel Borden Harriman Russell) handed out cigarettes for an hour a day, until 1918, when at the Y. M. C. A. service house at Bordeaux the two women had full charge of a staff of sixty and full responsibility for the feeding of two thousand soldiers and sailors daily. That was how the Y. M. C. A. grew in France and that was how Mrs. Astor's own part in the work developed.

The care of the Bordeaux house was a job in itself but in addition to this, Mrs. Astor had charge of the women's work for the Y. M. C. A. in the second division, which covered twelve camps in and around Bordeaux and kept fifty women workers busy every minute. She visited her camps every ten days, and reported to Paris every month. Meanwhile, of course, those 2,000 appetites were always demanding attention, and the pies, eggs and doughnuts had to be kept stacked high to keep ahead of the game. This meant that Mrs. Astor, as well as her sixty neat little French maids, had to put on the gingham apron and toil and fry eggs, sweep floors, make change, and hand out jam, frantically and furiously, in an earnest endeavor to fill that ever-aching void, the stomach of the A. E. F.

Fried Eggs Popular

The great American novel may not have appeared yet but the great American victual has, and that is, according to Mrs. Astor's canteen experience, "Two from the nest, sunny side up."

"There's nothing so tender to a doughboy's heart as a fried egg," said Mrs. Astor. "He will give up his last franc and borrow another for still great. It has been a splendid favorite dish, even when he's big brother to the soldier. There, not hungry. Eggs were expensive in France and we lost heavily on them, but 'Fried Eggs Will Win the War' was our motto, and the doughboy saw to it that we lived up to it. The canteen did not pretend to meet expenses and our prices were notoriously low. We tried hard to meet the needs of the enlisted men at prices within privates' pay."

Next to the love affair between the American soldier and the fried egg, came his passion for lemon meringue pie, Mrs. Astor said. It was hardest to make and hardest to eat, but the soldier was boss and so the lemon meringues were forthcoming by the hundreds every day. Crullers, too, had to be watched or the dough-boy would probably eat more than his quota of six and deprive his brother in arms of the delicacy.

Saw Army At War

These were the things that Mrs. Astor learned about the American army on leave as she waited on them day after day. And she, too, got her share of confidences from the men, who young and old, regarded an American woman as an angel from that particular heaven, home, and showed their homage by opening their hearts. But she also saw the American army at war, when during the St. Mihiel fight, she and Mrs. Russell jaunted up to the front in a tiny automobile, slept in the village of Limey in a tent and then went out ahead of the big American cannon shooting toward Metz, where in the roar of guns she saw the American boys trooping back, "pink and smiling, as if they were coming in from a football game." Five days she was there in the thick of things, after which she said she went back to work at Bordeaux with an increased admiration for the soldier that was a real inspiration.

Mrs. Astor did not see Lieut. Astor much while she was in Bordeaux, although he was stationed near by, because, as she said, they were both too busy. But that didn't mean that the young American society leader lacked for masculine company. For there were the dances, for one thing. There were always a dance at some camp or other, where several thousand soldiers would gather around a few dozen girls who had been requisitioned by the camp commander for the occasion.

There was much rivalry and much cutting in, that good American institution by which one man may steal another's partner and keep her—untill somebody else cuts in and whisks her away.

This might have been tiresome for the girls in question but for one thing: the "leathernecks" and gobs, according to Mrs. Astor, are exceptionally good dancers, and never once did a hobnail spoil the party.

Mrs. Astor is now urging that the work of the Y. M. C. A. be continued.

"I have seen the magnificent work of the organization," she said, "and said Mrs. Astor. "He will give up his last franc and borrow another for still great. It has been a splendid favorite dish, even when he's big brother to the soldier. There, not hungry. Eggs were expensive in France and we lost heavily on them, but 'Fried Eggs Will Win the War' was our motto, and the dough-

SCOUTS KEPT BUSY

British Boys Realize They Live in Stirring Times.

Patrol Leader Griggs and Pirate Have Adventures Which Would Seem to Furnish Quite a Number of Thrills.

"Me and Pirate saw her first," said Patrol Leader Griggs, when asked to recall the most recent maritime mishap of which, as a boy scout, he had official cognizance. "It was only the other day, and we'd been sent on special patrol along the cliff, two one way and two t'other, the sea fog being so thick. She was quite close in, but you could only just see her in the mist—a fair-sized steamer, and not moving, so I knew she was on the sand."

Griggs sent the Pirate back post haste, says "A. E. C." in London Daily Chronicle, that a rocket apparatus might be sent and the nearest lifeboat warned.

"The strange part was she didn't hoot or nothing," said Griggs—"not a sound. I lolla'd, but they wouldn't be likely to hear. Also I took off my jersey and waved it, just to let 'em know help 'ud be coming, but I don't think they saw."

Within 45 minutes Pirate returned in company with the rocket apparatus and its crew.

"And what do you think?" exclaimed Griggs indignantly, "at first they wouldn't take his word for it up at the station. Was he quite sure he hadn't made a mistake, if you please! Just as if I don't know a stranded steamer when I see one!"

The rocket was successfully fired and the tackle made fast on the steamer. But crew and vessel owed their rescue to the alternative aid brought by the boys' summons.

"When the lifeboat came up," explained Griggs, "they passed her, a warp, and she put an anchor out, and the steamer hauled herself back into deep water."

I asked about the scar on Griggs' knee.

"It was a beastly dark night," he replied, "when that happened. There was a parcel for the next station and I was taking it half-way, to meet one of their boys coming up—both on our bikes. I was going at a fair lick, and ran into a big biscuit tin that some silly ass had left in the middle of the road. At least it sounded like a biscuit tin, but I didn't go hunting round to find out what it was. The blood wasn't half running down my leg, so I got back as quick as I could."

"Do you find bicycles useful in coast watching?"

"They're all right to anyone used to them. I lent my bike to Pirate once—but never again! A mine was reported ashore a mile and a half along the coast. Pirate was told to hurry there and stand watch over it till the motorboat came to make it harmless. There's some sand holes and deep cuttings along the cliff, and being in too much of a hurry to see where he was going Pirate fell into pretty near all of them. Then he stuck the bike into a hedge and ran the rest."

"Have you ever had a mine come ashore and explode?"

"One did. It made a most tremendous loud noise, only I didn't hear it myself, being asleep at the time."

"Did it do much damage?"

"Depends on what you call much," replied Griggs judiciously. "A man's shoulder put out of joint and about a thousand quids' worth of broken windows."

Little Romance of Today.

There is a flavor of sheer romance about that Partizanski flag with its Scottish thistle, English rose, and Russian bear embroidered by the English ladies of Kermanshah, which figures in a striking little dispatch from a correspondent of the Times of London. Partizanski is a Cossack under the command of Bicharakoff, "the man with the face of an iron dreamer" met, with his troop, by the way, at Kasri Shirin. There was a Colonel Leslie among that Cossack troop who spoke no word of English and only a word or two of French, having been an "exile," as he put it, "for over three hundred years," an ancestor of his having come to Russia in the reign of Ivan. He had read of pipes, in his family records, but it was at Mendali, on the inhospitable borders of Luristan, that he heard the music of them for the first time, and it was a Punjabi piper who played the Cossacks in.

German Chemists at Work.

The activity of German chemists is shown in technical journals received through neutral countries. One of the new products is a safety detonator, which is stated to be a cheap and effective substitute for fulminate of mercury. The latter, besides being costly, is very dangerous to handle and in the caps is unstable, a little dampness causing it to attack the copper or brass, forming a copper salt far more explosive than the fulminate itself. The new filling is a mixture of potassium chlorate and antimony sulphide—neither explosive. Held against this by a thin strip of tin is a varnish of gum lacquer containing ground red phosphorus and a little disphenylamine, and as the hammer strikes the cap, ignition is produced by friction of the phosphorous against the charge.

Safe and Sane.

"You bought a lot of Liberty bonds?" "Yes. A Liberty bond was about the only thing I found that could be bought at its regular value during war times."

FATHERLESS FRENCH CHILDREN

Owing to epidemic conditions existing over the country, committees will be given until February first to reach their quotas. The Lee County Committee announces the adoption during December of 25 French orphans; a number which doubles the record for November. Help us maintain this standard in January, and Lee county shall meet her quota of 111 children by February first.

Hazelwood rural school (Miss Mary M. Larkin, teacher), has the proud distinction of being the first rural school in Lee county to undertake the support of a small French boy. This announcement will have greater significance when it is understood that the little pupils number but 11. On last Monday night a unique program was given at the school under Miss Laykin's skillful management, which netted a snug little sum towards the support of "Raymond Derique," their adopted French orphan.

The grades of the Central school, (Miss Mary Erwin, principal), have "adopted" little 9-year-old Christian Herrault of Angoulême, France, for one year. The above was the first grade school in Dixon to subscribe to the "Fatherless Children of France" fund.

The informal dance to be given on Monday night at Rosbrook's hall for the "Fatherless Children of France" by the Messrs. Schuler, Leake, Boyer, Hamilton, Roscraens promises to be a most festive occasion. The patronesses for the evening were announced elsewhere in last evening's edition. The Marquette orchestra will play. Decorations will consist of holiday greens and flags of the allied nations.

The following letter is from a French orphan:

My brother, Auguste, is nine years old and I am ten. In a few years we'll be able to support ourselves and mama, too. In the meantime we are both going to school. Our papa would have liked us to be well educated so that we would be better men and could work better. So we are trying to do what he would have liked. Mama tells us that is the only way to show that we still love him—poor dear papa. The awful war took him from us as it has from so many French children. He was in a regiment of "chasseurs alpins" and fought in Alsace without receiving a wound; but in a battle at the end of February, 1915, he was cruelly wounded—he was in a hospital in Lyons until April. Mama was with him at the last. Before he died he told her what he wanted for us and she told us, crying all the while. Oh, Madame, it is so sad to lose one's papa in the war.

RUTH RECEIVES THE CONGRATULATIONS OF HER FRIENDS

CHAPTER CXXXII

Arthur Mandel had seen the announcement that Brian had been advanced and decorated for his bravery under fire; and his heart sank. He knew something of the glamour such an action must naturally have for Ruth—as it would to most women. Not that he begrudged his country the service Brian had done; or that he thought with anything but pleasure that a gallant officer's life had been saved by his act. But, in a way, it seemed to make Ruth seem farther away. His winning her more doubtful.

Ruth heard from Brian. Their letters crossed. He told her very simply of what he had done to win his advancement; making light of his danger, but showing in every line his gratitude that he had been able to save the life of an officer.

Ruth showed the letter to her aunt. "A very nice letter, Ruth. It shows much fine feeling," she had commented after reading it. "He did a very brave action."

It pleased Ruth enormously to think that her aunt praised Brian in any way, for anything he might have done. The lady's prejudices were so strong, she had so objected to him, that Ruth took it as a good omen that she spoke kindly of him now.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts had to run in that night to discuss the wonderful news and congratulate Ruth that Brian had come thru in safety. Mrs. Curtiss also called up and told how wonderful she and Mr. Curtiss thought him. All her friends save only Arthur Mandel—whom she had come to consider friend as well as employer—were more than kind. Even Mrs. Livingstone wrote Ruth a little note telling her that she sympathized with her in her joy.

"It's queer he doesn't say something about it," Ruth said to herself the next morning after she had finished talking of the orders in the morning mail. There was a feeling of disappointment which amounted almost to resentment that Mandel had said nothing to her. Surely he knew.

But about eleven o'clock he passed her desk on his way out.

wreaths and ropes in the gay Christmas colors, arranged in festoons.

Music was furnished by the Marquette orchestra, assisted by Ned Coe, recently released from service, who played the saxophone, and, needless to say, the orchestra entuned with the gaiety of the affair, never furnished a more delightful dance program.

The hostesses had provided refreshments of ice cream and cake in the ante-room to the more than a hundred guests who were present. The affair was one of the gayest of the holiday season.

Among the out-of-town guests were Donald Antrim and Paul Lyons of Polo, Junior Peterman of Franklin Grove, Ned Clark of Sterling and Miss Katherine Owens of Columbus, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Countryman, of Wilmington, Del.

TO CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Russell returned to the city today after spending Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Grimes, Mrs. Russell's parents.

AT DINNER

Miss Josephine Watts will entertain at dinner tomorrow Miss Erma Forbes and her guest, Miss Mary Patton, of Chicago, and Miss Arlene Schrock. Miss Watts was associated with Miss Forbes and Miss Patton in directing the playground at the Hull House summer colony at Waukegan the past year.

TO CHICAGO TOMORROW

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walgren and family return to their home in Chicago tomorrow after spending Christmas with the former's sister, Mrs. F. X. Newcomer.

PARTY IN GRAND DETOUR

Miss Gladys Redfern of Grand Detour, entertained last evening with a delightful party which included the Misses Frances Busby and Eva Redfern of this city, who have been spending a delightful week in Grand Detour as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sheffield at the Sheffield hotel. The other guests were the Misses Mary Purteman, Goldie Strouse and Verna Davis, and the Messrs. Earl and John Mummia, the former home on a furlough from Ellington field, Houston, Texas, Dale Netz, also home on a furlough from Ellington Field, Carl Warner, home from a New York training camp, Russell Warner and Arthur Tholen. The evening passed merrily in games and music and a very enjoyable supper was served. The soldier boys in the party will return to the various camps the first of next week.

SCRAMBLE SUPPER

The members of the Young Woman's Bible Class of the Methodist Sunday school, with their families, enjoyed a scramble supper at the

"I see Mr. Hackett has been distinguishing himself," he said to Ruth. "Yes, isn't it wonderful! I am very proud of him."

"And with reason?" was the reply, accompanied by a stabbing hurt of which Ruth never dreamed.

"It is wonderful to think he came out of it 'without a scratch' as he expressed it," she returned. Then: "I hope it doesn't make him reckless."

"No—I don't think you need worry about that. A really good soldier is never foolishly reckless."

"Thank you," Ruth was very pleased at the implication.

That night she told her aunt what Mandel had said.

"Poor fellow," Mrs. Clayborne remarked.

"Why 'poor fellow'?" Ruth asked with a laugh. "I know of no one to whom that remark is less applicable."

"There are many reasons to feel sorry for him. He is a man eminently fitted to make some woman very happy; to be very happy himself in doing so. Yet he leads a lonely bachelor life. Isn't that reason enough to 'poor fellow' him?"

"I hardly think so, Aunt Louisa. He surely could have married, had he desired. He is very good-looking, has money; and besides he has a most attractive personality. No, I imagine he remains single because he wants to be freer that way."

"That, or he either hasn't met the woman he cares for, enough to make her his wife—or she is already married."

The remark went home. Ruth flushed crimson, and at once changed the subject. She knew Mandel liked her, she hoped he did not care too much. She thought of him in such a way that she would hate to make him suffer; or know he was unhappy.

Her aunt noticed the blush and misinterpreted it.

"It's a shame they aren't together and happy," she said to herself. "They are exactly suited to one another." Then, "But who knows what may happen? Ruth is young."

Then, before they had hardly accustomed themselves to thinking of Brian as a lieutenant, came other news.

church last evening. With the tables arranged in a hollow square about a Christmas tree and red candles in crystal candlesticks decorating the tables, the effect was especially pretty. About fifty were in attendance. A delightful social hour, giving everyone an opportunity to get acquainted with the other members of the class and their families, followed the supper.

MYSTIC WORKERS

The Mystic Workers met last evening in a well attended meeting. An excellent supper of sandwiches, coffee, pickles and cheese followed the business session. Plans for the installation of officers to be held in January were made.

OAK FOREST

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Nestor and Miss Mary Nestor were in Dixon Tuesday evening and brought home with them the Misses Ora and Ada Bryan, who remained as their guests until Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lundgren and daughter, Miss Helen, were also guests at the Christmas dinner. In the afternoon, the whole party attended the Christmas program given at the Wolverine schoolhouse. Miss Gertrude Smith is the teacher. The program was good and they had a very pretty decorated tree but the attendance was not very large, owing to the impassable condition of the roads.

Orar Miller had the misfortune to fall from his wagon Wednesday afternoon and strike on his shoulder, bruising himself considerably and causing him a good deal of pain, though it is hoped that his injuries will not prove more serious. Walter Hoyle will help him with his work for a few days.

Lester Hoyle and Ephraim Gerdes hitched eight horses onto the bungalow purchased by Fred Hoyle and George Brookner from Jack Lawrence. The house had first been raised on wheels. They moved it with little difficulty to the stone quarry, where the boys are grinding limestone.

Ira Ruit was in Dixon on business Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Nestor and family attended the show at the Family theater Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Mary McGinnis and daughters, Miss Kizzie and Miss Ella Older, entertained with a Christmas dinner, at which there were about thirty members of the family present. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGinnis and daughters, the Misses Blanche, Ruth, Josephine and Louise; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver McGinnis and children, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McGinnis and children, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cushing and family and Harry McGinnis. The Misses Blanche and Josephine McGinnis are home the rest of this week on a vacation from their schools, the Jonesville and Garrettsville schools.

AMERICAN ARMY TO CONTROL MOVEMENT

Pershing Issues Orders Controlling Movement Of People of Coblenz

MUST CALL THE CARDS

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Coblenz, Friday, Dec. 27.—Rules for the guidance of the inhabitants of places occupied by the American forces were issued today by General Pershing.

Except for minor and specific regulations the military authorities have not interfered with local affairs until today. Cafes have been open and theaters have been filled, the crowds remaining in the streets until midnight and even later. While there have been no serious infractions of the tolerance allowed by the military, the regulations issued today are deemed necessary to check any tendency toward abuse of the privileges which have been allowed the people. The published rules today were signed by Gen. McAndrews, chief of staff, "by order of Gen. Pershing."

They are intended to maintain good order. Under their provisions the exact whereabouts of every citizen will be known at all times, as each citizen must carry an identification card, and must notify the military authorities immediately upon his change of location. The owner of each house must post a list of all residents of that house, giving ages, nationalities and occupations. All weapons and ammunition must be surrendered to the military authorities, and the gathering of crowds or holding of public meetings with the exception of courts, councils, school and religious bodies is prohibited without permission from the army authorities. The rules announce that a military court will try any person who "commits an injury to the American army."

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside, no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish tinging which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Mr. and Mrs. Egford Etnyre, of south of town entertained at Christmas dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Frank Glessner and family.

Walter Brauer is not feeling well and his father, Frank Brauer, is staying with him for a few days to help him.

CONCERT OF NATIONS NEEDED SAYS WILSON

Final Achievement

Such an achievement he characterized as "this great, may I not say final, enterprise of humanity."

In American quarters it was stated the president's conference with British and French leaders have been satisfactory.

At the outset of his speech he declared he did not fancy the welcome which had been given him was purely personal, but was the voice of a people gratified that war had ceased and that the conception of peace was to be made a guarantee that war was not to be repeated. "It now rests with us," he concluded, "that the lives which have been lost shall not have been lost in vain."

orite, 7,553 to 3,784.

At Blackburn, Philip Snowden,
Laborite and pacifist, was defeated.
Of the 353 members elected to the new house not less than 274 are in support of the government. The new house will consist of 707 members, and of those known to be elected, 198 are coalition Unionists and 76 are coalition Liberals. The Independent Unionists have 8 and the Asquithian Liberals have only 5. Labor had 35 members and the Irish Nationalists 1, the Sinn Feiners 26 and there are 4 Independents.

It is probable that the Laborites will be the second strongest party in the house, as the Sinn Feiners will refrain from attending. The Laborites lost two leaders in Henderson and Snowden.

The Asquith section of the Liberal party, also lost heavily not only in the defeat of the former premier, but also in Sir John Simon, probable heir to the leadership, and Reginald McKenna, one of the former premier's chief lieutenants.

Of the 14 women candidates at the recent elections only 5 so far know their fates, and they have all been defeated.

The counting of the votes cast at the recent election began this morning and the final result may be announced in a short time.

WILSON WAS GUEST
AT U. S. EMBASSY

SPENT MORNING AT AMERICAN
EMBASSY IN LONDON—MET
MANY OFFICERS.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Dec. 28.—President Wilson went to the American embassy this morning, where he met delegations from a large number of societies and leagues who presented him with memorials and resolutions on his visit to London.

He arrived at the embassy in a semi-state car from Buckingham Palace. A crowd had gathered in the street and the windows and balconies in the block of the embassy were occupied by American naval and army officers and soldiers and sailors. The crowds cheered as the president stepped out of the carriage to enter the building, passing through a guard of honor of United States marines.

He went to the second floor of the building where he received the visiting delegations one after the other, the ceremonies consisting chiefly of handshaking. Many of the leaders presented him with rolls or memorials, and there was quite a pile of these after they had passed. One of the memorials was from the British Labor party, presented by Arthur
Henderson and Charles Bowerman.
In accepting it the President expressed his doubts whether he merited the kind things it said about him, but he said he would do all in his power to carry out the ideals mentioned in the address.

Aid in Getting Jobs.

Individual cooperation of draft that the boards cannot act in any official capacity in the direct demobil-

H. H. Merriek and Graham Taylor made short addresses, explaining the work of the federal bureau in bringing returned fighters and civilian jobs together and urged the cooperation of every board member now and after the boards are disbanded. They said that until spring farm work and public improvement projects are op-

given proper employment.

ADDRESS TO THE KING

Wilson and Wife Guests Of Honor At Great State
Banquet Last Eve

London, Dec. 28.—No more real setting ever had been arranged in Buckingham palace than that which greeted President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson when they were escorted into the banquet hall last night for the precedent-breaking state dinner.

Every royal formality which had attended occasions at the palace for two or three hundred years was carried out before and during the banquet.

President Wilson, with Queen Mary led the procession into the dining hall, preceded by officials of the palace, splendidly costumed, bearing wands and walking backwards and making obeisance to the guests.

Immediately behind the president and the queen came King George and Mrs. Wilson. They were followed by members of the royal family.

Twelve at Head of Table
At the head of the table twelve persons were seated, with King George in the middle. President Wilson sat at the king's right and Mrs. Wilson on his left. To the right of President Wilson was Queen Mary and then the French ambassador, Princess Christian, the Spanish ambassador, and Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Connaught.

Prior to the dinner President and Mrs. Wilson were escorted from their apartments to the great white drawing room, where the royal family had gathered with their other guests. These guests were presented to President and Mrs. Wilson and the dinner party immediately proceeded to the dining hall.

Huge Selection of Plate
The scene was one of splendor. In the dining salon was a great collection of solid gold ornaments valued at $15,000,000. These had been brought from the vaults for the occasion. One of three buffets contained pieces of plate too large or otherwise too cumbersome for use. These included one piece of great size taken from the wreck of the Spanish armada.

In color the gold laden table blended with the decorations in the hall, which are white and gold, with crimson carpet and upholstery to match. The crimson effect was further carried out by the exclusive use of poinsettias as floral decorations. In the balcony at the end of the room was a military orchestra, not hidden from view by floral or other decorations. The attendants were in full state dress, which was heavy with gold lace.

President's Address
In reply to the address of welcome by King George, the president said: "I am deeply complimented by the gracious words which you have uttered. The welcome which you have given me and Mrs. Wilson has been so warm, so natural, so evidently from the heart, that we have been more than pleased."

"We have been touched by it, and I believe that I correctly interpret that welcome as embodying not only your own generous spirit toward us personally but also as expressing for yourself and the great nation over which you preside that same feeling for my people, for the people of the United States."

Spirit of Two Nations
"For you and I, sir—I temporarily—embody the spirit of two great nations, and whatever strength I have and whatever authority I possess is only so long and so far as I express the spirit and purpose of the American people."

"Every influence that the American people have over the affairs of the world is measured by their sympathy with the aspirations of free men everywhere."

"America does love freedom, and I believe that she loves freedom unselfishly. But if she does not, she will not and cannot help the influence to which she justly aspires."

"I have had the privilege, sir, of conferring with the leaders of your own government and with spokesmen of the government of France and of Italy, and I am glad to say that I have the same conceptions that they have of the significance and scope of the duty on which we have met."

Understand "Right and Justice"
"We have used great words; all of us have used the great words 'right' and 'justice,' and now we are to prove whether or not we understand these words and how they are to be applied to the particular settlements which must conclude this war."

"And we must not only understand them but we must have the courage to act upon our understanding."

"Yet after I have uttered the word 'courage' it comes into my mind that it would take more courage to resist the great moral tide now running in the world than to yield to it, than to obey it."

"There is a great tide running in the hearts of men. The hearts of men have never beaten so singularly in unison before."

Conscious of Brotherhood
"Men have never before been so conscious of their brotherhood. Men have never before realized how little difference there was between right and justice in one latitude and in another, under one sovereignty and under another."

"And it will be our high privilege. I believe, not only to apply the moral judgment of the world to the particular settlements which we shall attempt, but also to organize the moral force of the world to preserve those settlements, to steady the forces of mankind, and to make the right and the justice to which great nations like our own have devoted themselves, the predominant and controlling force of the work."

Important Above All Else

"There is something inspiring in knowing that this is the errand that we have come on. Nothing less than this would have justified me in leaving the important tasks which fall upon me upon the other side of the sea—nothing but the consciousness that nothing else compares with this in dignity and importance."

"Therefore, it is the more delightful to find myself in the company of a body of men united in ideal and purpose and to feel that I am privileged to unite my thoughts with yours in carrying forward these standards which we are so proud to hold so high and to defend."

"May I not, sir, with a feeling of profound sincerity and friendship and sympathy, propose your health and the health of the queen and the prosperity of Great Britain?"

Tuesday Night the Opening Chapters Will Appear

Trap Gun and Rod

by Tom Marshall

Our nation must relax. Reconstruction is in order in every avenue of life, along broader and more comprehensive lines. Especially is this fact true in the world of sports. In the patriotic sport of trapshooting the interest has never decreased, neither has there been a cessation of interest or public endorsement. Uncle Sam's endorsement by establishing shooting schools in all cantonments and ground schools, at the same time sending 2,000,000 targets across the water to General Pershing for use in educating the "doughboys" on moving objects was especially useful. There was never a chance for a shot at a stationary "Hun" after the Yanks took the trenches, as those Boches were at all times making one of their strategic retreats, escaping from the destructive effect of those sawed-off shot guns in the hands of expert trapshooters. This was the combination that brought the cry of "Kamerad" in conjunction with a storm of protest from the German government.

During the period of war, Gun Clubs have been organized and consistently operated, not only by Country Clubs and private parties, but Municipalities have installed traps and encouraged trapshooting within the confines of the Public Parks, Country Clubs, in many places, dropped lawn tennis and golf, and substituted trapshooting as the real patriotic sport.

It has now become the fashionable fad in which women are forging to the front; schools of instruction under competent teachers have been established at many of the ultra-fashionable watering places and resorts becoming proficient and expert in the high art of shooting at the traps, their inclination then is to go afield, where they have been most successful. In many instances women are reported as having secured the legal limit of birds, usually quail or snipe; although many assume the roll of real duck shooters.

The advent of many women at the traps has had the effect of popularizing the sport with one and all. It has been my observation that more interest at all times is created by the presence of women, who serve, not only to popularize, but to elevate the sport to a higher plane, as is the case in all lines of sport. Women delight in preparedness and feel that education along the line of handling shot guns, which virtually means fire arms in general is the real "safety first" slogan for both home and person.

The "doughboys" have returned an army of trained trapshooters, who are anxious to have a try on conclusions with the gentler sex, many of whom are now acknowledged high score makers. Promoters of major sports are now busy on plans for a rejuvenation along all angles. Base ball will come back bigger and stronger than ever. Golf will again come into its own popularity. Racing parks will again be recognized and the ponies permitted to "go" on many tracks, which have been tabooed. The Interstate Trapshooting Association is now formulating a code of diversified ideas, which, when promulgated, will stimulate the sport of trapshooting in a way that it will be recognized as America's major sport. As a nation, we need and require a season of relaxation, complete rest with an opportunity to forget war or sordid business. This can only be accomplished by the adoption of sport diversion. Good, healthy, life-prolonging, outdoor sports spell the very best life insurance policy a man can have written. Answer nature's requirements—complete rest both in mind and body.

Uncle Sam is now returning 4,000,000 men trained to the minute in the use and handling of fire arms. This aggregation of red-blooded men will require healthy diversion, naturally they will turn to the sport, wherein they have received intensive training—trapshooting. Many of our parks in cities are favorably located for the installation of traps, carrying no possible angle of danger as the zone of injury, for shot used in trapshooting is extremely limited. Park commissioners could not promote a sport which would be as popular, gratifying and universally enjoyed by their many home and returning soldier constituents, as to establish traps and equipment on public park property. Country clubs should immediately and permanently adopt shooting. Gun clubs must reorganize; interesting and entertaining the new candidates who have just arrived. Now is the logical time for shooting clubs—they strike a popular chord. Give the boys the line of sport they want—Trapshooting. Question: What has become of Annie Oakley, the little "Sure Shot," who was formerly with Buffalo Bill's show? Is she living? F. T. J.

Answer: Annie Oakley (Mrs. Frank Butler) is very much alive and extremely active in the shooting game. For a number of years she has been conducting shooting schools, preferably for women, at the ultra-fashionable resorts. The last time I saw her shoot, she performed with the old-time vim and accuracy. Question: What is your opinion of the "Try Gun" as advocated by some shooters. Do you consider them of especial benefit in the selection of a gun? Buffalo, N. Y. Frank Judson.

Answer: There is no question. The try gun is a very valuable adjunct in the selection of a gun fitting the man. You will also find that the men who are exploiting the try guns have made a study of requisites and are of great assistance in fitting the gun to the man.

Question: Is there an inanimate target made that resembles the flight of a tame pigeon? Upon what principle is it operated? Richmond, Ind. F. H. T.

Answer: You no doubt are inquiring about the "Steel passenger pigeon." They are manufactured at Akron, Ohio. They are operated along taut wires which are strung in different directions at varied angles, their velocity is about the same as a tame pigeon. When struck by a pellet of shot, they indicate by a complete collapse. This equipment is excellent for country clubs and creates a great deal of shooting interest.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON & QUINCY RAILROAD

Locate Your New Home Along The Burlington

Soldiers, sailors and civilians, in seeking free homestead lands or buying decedent lands, will do well to search in the territory served by the Burlington Route. Its lines through Western Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado and Montana, have been populated within the past twenty years by a civilization of the most prosperous type.

There are yet in the Wyoming territory served by the Burlington large areas of grass-covered lands for homestead entry in 640-acre tracts. You can buy decedent lands for dairy farming in Western Nebraska and Eastern Colorado on terms that any good farmer can meet. From year to year the Government is opening irrigated lands in the Big Horn Basin, with perpetual water rights. If you settle along the Burlington you rear your home in a progressive locality, where every community is increasing in population. Write me. I want to start you thinking as to where you or your son had best locate.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.
Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.
Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

The Evening Story

"Man May Love"

From Life

"Miss Young I want to ask you something," and Geoffrey modestly pulled the sheets close up under his pink chin. "I suppose you'll think me an awful bore for saying this to you so abruptly, but I'm dreadfully in earnest. Will you marry me, please?"

Miss Young did not stop a minute in her deft arrangement of his breakfast tray. She didn't even blush. "No, I don't think I will," she answered. "You see, I can't marry everyone that asks me."

"How many have you married already?"

"Well I haven't married any yet."

"Then marry me."

The unruffled like nurse smiled at his impetuosity. "You know," she said, "every marriageable male that I have ever nursed has proposed to me. It is merely a sign of recovery. It ought to go on the list of symptoms."

"My proposal is a symptom all right, but not of recovery. It is a symptom that I am desperately in love."

"You do it beautifully, but you are not quite so romantic as Antonio, my last potential husband. He wanted me to flee with him to Italy, but his wife came and took him away."

Geoffrey was indignant. "Do you think I'm going to let you stay here while every Dick, Tom and Dago Harry proposes to you?"

"Better eat your breakfast sonny."

"Sonny" Geoffrey glanced over his face to the wall. "I don't care for any breakfast thank you."

"All right, I'll take the tray away in a minute," and with a knowing smile she left the room.

Geoffrey was twenty-one possessing all the impetuosity and dignity accessory to that age. He had offered his love and had been laughed at. She had called him "Sonny."

Yet during those three past weeks of antiseptic nightmare she had been extremely kind to him. Perhaps she loved someone else. At the thought Geoffrey became quite disconsolate.

But finally he turned over and his eyes fell upon the breakfast tray laid temptingly beside his bed. A ravenous hunger assailed him. He pulled the tray onto the bed and began to eat. After all things were not so bad. A woman always had to be coaxed.

Meanwhile Miss Young was talking it over with a sister nurse at breakfast in the nurses quarters.

"What I want to know Helma, is this. When do we ever get a fair chance at a man? We don't get away from the hospital logs enough at a time to capture one, and here we receive proposals every day it's against the rules to marry the patients."

"Did he propose to you?" interposed Helma.

"Yes he did. And he's a nice boy, too."

"Excuse me, not for mine. I'm vaccinated against marriage. I'm tired of having men growl and grumble at me all the time."

"Sure, so am I. But, Helma, wouldn't it be perfectly grand to have just one great big man to jaw at you? He asked me to call him Geoffrey."

"Look here, kid, you're not falling in love, are you?" demanded the quizzical Helma.

"I wonder if he has another girl," answered Miss Young irrelevantly.

About noon Geoffrey became exceedingly restless. Miss Young smoothed his pillows again and again. Once when her hand strayed temptingly near, he grasped it and kissed it. It must be confessed that Miss Young didn't withdraw her hand quite so quickly as the superintendent would have thought proper. She even blushed and that was very unusual for the sophisticated nurse.

"Gee, I know I'm an awful bore to keep bothering you like this, but haven't you changed your mind? Don't you think you can marry me?"

"Look here, Geoffrey," she really hadn't meant to call him Geoffrey—"you don't know what you're talking about. I'm the only woman you've seen in the last three weeks. I may have helped pull you over some pretty rough places. Of course you think you have to marry your benefactor."

"I have to marry you Miss Young, but that's not the reason. I'm going to ask you three times a day until you consent to be my wife."

"Well, keep it up Geoffrey. It will help pass the time." Miss Young had quite regained her customary impetuosity.

Geoffrey kept his word. When his nurse was in his room he watched her continually and at the most unexpected times propounded the old question. If she left the room he always developed a dreadful thirst as an excuse for an imperative summons. Even Miss Young found it hard to doubt his sincerity. She floundered between natural emotions and her professional indifference.

At last, Geoffrey was pronounced well, and yet the girl had not consented. He had no excuse for remaining longer, so with evident bad humor he consented to go.

"Miss Young," he said, "I'm going home today, and I just won't leave you here for some dirty 'Dago' to be grabbing at your hand and proposing to you all the time. Marry me and come away from here."

"Geoffrey, I'm going to give you a square deal. You go home for a month see other girls, and if you then still want to marry me, come up here and I'll think about it."

"I'm on, Miss Young. Say, I've found out your first name. It's Claire, isn't it? You know I used to think Diana was a peach of a name, but Claire beats it a mile."

Geoffrey went home. Miss Young cried a little in the solitude of her room. Then she settled down to a half hopeful vigil of waiting. During the first two weeks she received seven letters, each declaring Geoffrey's undying devotion and his firm desire to return for her. Every night she read the entire collection up to date, and wept over them, as is the manner of women beloved. Then four days she received no word. She fought this rather hopeless portent with trusting heart.

Often during the long day's work when patients grumbled, when some ogling male became amorously persistent, when the little nurse found herself almost hating mankind, she slipped into the vacant corridor and re-read one of the treasured epistles to give her faith.

The third week dragged along and the beginning of the fourth, and still she received not a word. At first she waited impatiently for each day's mail but finally she began to delay her call at the desk, dreading the recurrent disappointment.

At last one morning at breakfast she received a letter addressed in Geoffrey's handwriting. All aflutter she slipped it into her pocket until she should be alone. But she couldn't wait, so she tremulously tore the envelope open and read:

"My dear Miss Young: I shall always regard you as a woman of the rarest good sense. You must have thought me a great fool. I think a man is hardly responsible for what he does when he is sick. I must thank you for your splendid nursing aid, furthermore for the way in which you brought me to my senses. You see, Diana and I have made it up again. I'm sending you a card."

The card bore the conventional "Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Harvey announce—"

Miss Young slowly crumpled up the letter and shoved it into her pocket. "Heine," she said, "one of these days I'm going to take advantage of some guy and marry him while I've got him down."

THE IMPULSIVE MR. JIGGS

From Life

Marathon Jones approached the day clerk. "Is Mr. George Jones here?" he inquired.

"He is registered here, but he's out at present," replied the clerk. "Would you like to leave any message?"

"Thank you, I believe I will," said Jiggs, reaching for the hotel stationery. He hastily scribbled a note, left it, sans envelope, at the desk and took his departure.

About an hour later a large, overbearing woman of the super-dread-naught type steamed majestically to the desk, a small and timid looking individual in her wake. After taking the mail that had accumulated in the box she stalked imposingly to the elevator, accompanied by the timid person, who by his conduct appeared to be her husband.

When the couple got to their room Mrs. George Jones sat down and scanned the family mail. As she read, the color flooded her expansive face like a sunset, then receded, leaving her chalky white with rage. Her unfortunate spouse cowered in a corner.

Rising to her feet in all the majesty of her five feet eleven, she thrust a note into Jones hand. "Read that!" she commanded hoarsely.

Dear George:

Why don't you let me know when you get to town? I expected you yesterday. Call me up, the same old number and we will have a time tonight.

Yours as ever,
MARY.

"You rone!" stormed Mrs. Jones. "I shall institute divorce proceedings immediately. To think you have been leading a double life! You may expect a visit from my lawyer!" The door slammed behind her as Jones sank dazedly into a chair.

As she flounced out the door of the hotel Marathon Jiggs again came to the desk. "Did Mr. Jones get my note?" he asked.

"No but his wife did," replied the clerk.

"His wife?" came in a gasp from Jiggs. "His wife? Who—let me see the register please."

He hastily scanned the list of guests until he came to Jones's name. "Mr. George K. Jones and wife, Chicago, Illinois," he read incredulously, "and I thought it was George H. Jones of Pittsburg. What if his wife—I must see him immediately." And he hurried to the elevator.

As Jones sat in his room, bewildered at the events of the past hour, a knock startled him out of his reverie. "Come in!" he called uneasily, expecting his wife's lawyer to appear. The sight of the homely but benevolent face of Jiggs was a distinct relief.

"My name is Jiggs," stated the caller—"Marathon Jiggs, nicknamed 'Mary' at the university. I left a note for a friend of mine whom I thought was staying here, named George H. Jones. I understand that your wife got it by mistake. It is quite possible that she read it and misunderstood the matter; therefore I have come to clear it up, if such is the case, and exonerate you."

Jones drew up a chair. "Sit down," he said, "and we will talk this over. My wife has just gone out to see a lawyer about a divorce. You have already done me one favor; now what's taking out a check book. 'Will you take to keep quiet about facts?'"

AIRMEN HAVE THEIR THRILLS
Miss Excitement of Going "Over the Top," but Life Has Some Enlivening Moments.

In a little estaminet some way from the front several officers had finished dinner and were dawdling over their liqueurs. The conversation had turned upon what it felt like to go over the top.

Smithson had just been holding forth, and he turned chaffingly to Clarke, a balloon officer invited in to make up a four, and remarked: "Anyway, you air merchants escape that!"

"Do we?" answered the balloon officer, removing his pipe. "I'll just tell you what it feels like for us to make a forced parachute descent."

"I was up one day, very low visibility, squatting just under the clouds, when without warning three Boche planes swooped down."

"Every machine gun and 'Archie' in the neighborhood started off for miles around. I felt a bit dazed, but realizing what was up, yelled to the other fellow with me to get over, took off my telephone mouthpiece and scrambled to the edge of the basket. Instinctively I saw the panorama around, the white zig-zag of trenches in front and behind the dull gray sea, with here and there a ship. I remember thinking impersonally what a long way to the ground 3,000 feet was!"

"But, drawing a breath, over I went and dropped 200 feet, when the ropes began to tighten around me, and I realized in a flash the parachute had opened."

"I saw the other chap floating away beneath me and I couldn't help thinking we must look like a number of mushrooms chasing each other. Suddenly the earth rushed up to meet me with an awful bang and I found myself mixed up with some sheds. But actually I had alighted quite gracefully and was only bruised and suffering slightly from shock."

"It really wasn't much except for the first awful leap, and even that was afterward compensated for by a dear old lady to whom I showed the parachute spread out at home and who remarked: 'How clever it was to have jumped from a balloon into such a small sheet.'"

The large circulation of the Evening Telegraph makes it the greatest advertising medium in Lee county.
